Oriental Rugs: : Best News

A fine and dignified New York house, long famous for its trade in Oriental goods, is withdrawing from the Rug branch of the business. It is part of this stock we have closed out.

We got probably the most magnificent array of Eastern Carpets ever shown in this vicinity—and paid perhaps half their worth. We got antique Anatolians, Ghiordes, Kirmanshahs—and paid half or less.

The stock is wonderfully rich in Rugs of rare beauty and coloring—Rugs that collectors especially will prize—Rugs that are rarely offered in a sale even for slight concessions from usual prices. And all go into this sale at prices a third to full half less than they would be ordinarily.

to full half less than they would be ordinarily.

We print price details—but no print can indicate the beauty of the Rugs. Some of the Fulton street windows are full of them. A great extra space on the third floor in addition to the regular Rug Store is given up to the sale.

If you are fond of Rugs, it will pay to make a special trip into town to get first choice from this stock. It is certainly such a chance as has not been equaled in many years—perhaps never.

$90 to $135 Kirmanshahs at $55.50 to $85.50.
$65 and $85 Senna Rugs at $42.50 and $48.50.
$100 to $265 Carpets at $50 to $132.50.

Thirty Carpets—the most remarkable offering of Persian Cashmere and Gulistan weaves we have ever made. It is a magnificent collection, each Carpet newly arrived here and ranging in size from 6 ft. 7 inches by 9 ft. 2 inches to 10 ft. 10 inches by 14 ft. 9 inches. Only by seeing them can you appreciate their beauty and low prices.

Silk Shirtwaist Suits, $9.50 : : Sensational

SENSATIONAL IS THE RIGHT WORD, for this is the very beginning of the season. These are the handsomest Shirtwaist Suits ever made to sell for $15 to $18. They are absolutely new—finished within a few days and showing the newest points in style. And yet we shall have a hundred and sixty-eight of them to-morrow for LESS THAN THE WORTH OF THE SILK ALONE, or LESS THAN THE WORTH OF THE MAKING ALONE.

$15 to $18 Silk Suits for $9.50.

Mighty few of the Suits could be sold regularly for $15 even here. None of them would be sold for as little as $15 outside this Store. But the maker had the silk on hand, more than he could dispose of in the regular way, so he has pock-

There is a great range of styles in the silk and styles in the making. There are heavy taffetas, plain or with wide or narrow stripes or dots or checks. Colorings range from light to dark effects. Waists are tucked and plaited; some with yokes of lace, other, relieved with combinations of Persian braid; others piped in contrasting colors; sleeves are very full with deep cuffs. The skirts are full, tucked, side plaited, gored and with gathered flounces. None sent C. O. D. or on approval. It is the best offering we ever knew at the season's beginning.

OLD FIREMAN NOW A MONK

DANIEL KELLY, ONCE FOREMAN OF MECHANICS HOSE.

Now He Is Brother Bonaventure of St. Michael's Monastery in Hoboken-Left the City and the World Thirty-nine Years Ago and Has Never Returned.

The gathering of the former members of old Live Oak Company of the Volunteer Fire Department at the funeral of their foreman, Peter Maloney, recently, led to an informal rollcall of the survivors of the Live Oaks and their one time rivals, Mechanics Hose Company 47.

Nearly all of the old crowd who are still living responded to their names. Only one remained to be accounted for, and the reminiscences of the old firemen brought out the fact that the missing member, once foreman of the Mechanics, is to-day a brother in the monastery of St. Michael in Brother Bonaventure, Daniel Kelly of the old days, was a great favorite with the lads who ran with the Mechanics. He was a quiet man, never looking for trouble in the days when most of the young bloods loved a fight better than a dinner, and fought fair too. But he was considered a bad man to take liberties with.

One night when the Mechanics were racing to a fire and a member of a rival company raised a trumpet to strike Kelly, it is said by the annalist of that day that Kelly took the offender across his knee and spanked him in a style that an oldtime schoolmaster might have envied.

In those days the boys settled all differences in the old fashioned way and a best of friends. As the poet of the old Turks' Island district has sung: Never see such hittin' out in yer life

And knocking things head over heels, Why, I had to pull Billy and Slobbery Jim Right out from under the wheels.

But times have changed since then, my boy, Now the pistol is all the go: But then we took a box or a kick

And gave a poor devil a show. Kelly was made foreman of the Mechanics in 1859 and served with distinction until the Volunteers were disbanded in 1865. For a year after that he was seen about the old haunts, where the severe and almost ascetic purity of his life made him a marked man, and where he was beloved for his simple goodness and his charity.

Then Kelly disappeared from the Eleventh ward and in time was forgotten. No one knew where he had gone, for although kind to all he had no close personal friends. That was thirty-nine years ago.

A few months ago one of the boys who ran with the Mechanics chanced to visit the monastery. He asked to be shown through the place and was put in charge of Brother Bona venture.

As the stranger was about to leave the building and was thanking the brother for his kindness the latter held out his hand with a smile and said?

"So you've forgotten me, Jim. Don't you remember when we both ran with the old Mechanics Hose over yonder across

Then indeed the visitor recognized in the monk the foreman of Company 47, the quiet, soft spoken man who was ever ready to take desperate chances at a fire and whose arm was strong and fist heavy when defending the right.

Brother Bonaventure received many invitations after that to revisit the old scenes and mingle again with the com panions of many a hard fought battle, but he refused them all. As he himself says: "Those days seem like a dream now and I had rather not spoil my memories by coming too near." Since he boarded the ferryboat thirtynine years ago to enter the monastery Brother Bonaventure has not recrossed the river. He still takes great interest in the growth of the city, which he can watch from his lofty perch on the Hoboken hills.

He has seen the tall buildings rear their heads and the city grow northward until it passed from sight. He is proud of his old home, but his thoughts have turned to other things.

"They were a fine set of lads," he said a few days ago while speaking of the old, hard running, hard fighting and hard swearing crowd of Live Oaks and Mechanics. "but they were better boys than they are often painted, and there was far less deviltry of the harmful sort in those times than there is to-day, if what I hear is true.

"A man who drank too hard and didn't live straight didn't stay long on the old fire companies. It took something besides nerve to stay with the leaders on the drag ropes and pull your weight. None of the bums and toughs of these days could do

"Yes, they were good lads, but I came to the place where the roads part, and I had to say good-by to them all. I am happy here and I take pleasure in watchnappy here and I take pleasure in watching the growth and prosperity of the great city; but mine are the paths of quietness and peace, and I shall never recross the ferry or look again on the old streets along which I once raced with the young blood leaping in my veins and the heart of a boy affame." Cut Glass: : An Event Unparalleled. $100,000.00 Stock at HALF PRICE or Near It.

THE QUAKER CITY CUT GLASS CO., of Philadelphia, made more Cut Glass than they could sell immediately. They are probably the largest producers of Cut Glass in the world. They have a great plant to keep running and a surplus accumulated. We were asked to help them out of the difficulty. That was natural, for the stock to be sold was immense and only a store with an immense outlet could handle it. The result is that we shall start to-morrow a sale of Cut Glass which has never been equaled in Brooklyn, which we believe has never been equaled anywhere in the country.

The Cut Glass is of MAGNIFICENT QUALITY. The makers turn out nothing else. Their product is largely sold through exclusive jewelry stores and luxury shops throughout the country. Their exhibit at St. Louis was awarded a GRAND PRIZE. A tremendous Vase (5 feet 7¾ inches high), the largest piece of Cut Glass in the world, was especially cut by them for the St. Louis Exposition and will be on exhibition here to-morrow or the day after.

Every piece of Cut Glass in the Sale is PERFECT. The crystal is pure white. The cutting and polishing are the finest work of the best work men.

For wedding gifts, for personal use, for hotel men and cafe managers, the sale presents an opportunity that has never been paralleled, we believe. Ready to-morrow morning.
